In ancient times, priestesses would hold ceremonies to promote womanhood, healing, and spiritual energy. The ceremonies often took place in private caves or temples, lit only by the light of candles or oil lamps. In the rituals that were performed, the priestesses would place six sapphires around the group of women to harness the energy and to provide protection. They would look to the moon and stars as a source of guidance and insight.

At Sapphire, I invite you to begin your own journey of healing, whatever that may be.
